Ume & Yuzu Shu

Ume (plum) or Yuzu Shu is a type of Japanese liqueur that is only produced in Japan, using local fruits. Locally harvested fruits are submerged in sake and give unique sweetness and flavors. Generally, these types of beverages considered as liqueur and can be drunk on the rocks, with soda, or neat (especially suitable for more complex umeshu).

Shochu

Shochu is a distilled spirit from Japan primarily made from sweet potato, barley, and rice. These spirits are usually produced in a warm, humid area such as the southern part of Japan; Kagoshima and Kumamoto are the most famous regions. Generally, Shochu made from Imo (sweet potato) is the most popular and flavorful, often expressing herbal and sharp flavor notes and is paired with Robata dishes. Mugi (barley) shochu shows more mineral, protein structures and is usually paired with Tempura. Lastly, Kome (Rice) shochu expresses the most delicate and sweet flavors in comparison to the other types of Shochu. Try with Sashimi or small savory dishes. Shochu can be drunk on the rocks, neat or even warm.

Featured Sake

KOKURYU SHUZO (Fukui)

"If we make good sake, people will support it." That's been our motto since Kokuryu was founded in 1804 in the mountains of Fukui. It's an ancient land, nestled between snowy peaks and the Sea of Japan, not far from the main Soto Zen temple Eihei-ji. From a long tradition of sake brewing, Kokuryu today stands as one of the region's few survivors. We grow our own rice. We seek out special yeasts. And we strive for the best in brewing and maturation, hand-crafting only the highest-caliber sakes in small batches.

TAKAGI SHUZO : JUYONDAI (Yamagata)

It is not too much of an overstatement to call Takagi Shuzo one of the most influential sake breweries in the world. In 1993 fifteenth generation owner Akitsuna Takagi took over the brewery at the age of 21 when he was still a student, learning the art of brewing on the job. This was at a time when few young brewers were entering the business, and Takagi set out to make a distinctive sake, one that fruit forward and vibrant as opposed to the light and dry style that was popular at the time. The resulting brand was Juyondai, literally "fourteenth generation" in honor of Takagi's father calling attention to the long lineage of the family.

ISOJIMAN PREMIUM SAKE BREWING COMPANY (Shizuoka)

Isojiman Shuzo was established in Yaizu City, Shizuoka Prefecture in 1830 (Tenpo Era, First year). Like many sake breweries established in Edo Period, the owner of Isojiman Shuzo was a major landowner in Yaizu, and possibly the village headman.

Isojiman is born from the harmony between carefully selected sake rice, excellent water (soft water) from the South Alps in Japan, and the brewers. It is Isojimans' sincerest desire that all of our products convey the "Isojiman" image when enjoyed by customers. It is the fusion of tradition and leading technology, and the path from innovation to reality. Isojiman are constantly involved in heartfelt sake brewing by "putting forth a little more effort," in order to provide customers with even better products.

ASAHI SHUZO (Yamagata)

At Asahi Shuzo, we only make one sake: Dassai. From all the different categories of sake, Dassai is of the most premium "Junmai-Daiginjo" category. Junmai means it is naturally fermented, without any alcohol added. Additionally the word Daiginjo is very important: it describes top-quality sake that is made using rice that has been polished to remove at least the outer 50% of the original rice grain.

Dassai is made using only one variety of rice: Yamada Nishiki rice, often called "the king of sake-making rice". In the past, we have tried to use many different varieties of rice, but Yamada Nishiki was the one we considered to be the best for us to craft a great sake. And eventually, Dassai became a Junmai Daiginjo sake only crafted with Yamada Nishiki rice.

Fujita area is one of these "Special A area" and we have managed to contract with farmers there to purchase their entire production of Yamada Nishiki. But Yamada Nishiki is the one of the most challenging varieties of rice to cultivate. It falls easily as it is about 120cm high, 20cm taller than ordinary varieties of rice grown for eating. Its grains are also bigger: if ordinary rice weighs 22 grams per 1,000 grains, Yamada Nishiki weighs 27 grams or more. As it is taller and heavier than others, it tends to fall easily. To prevent it from falling, farmers try all kinds of things every year such as tilling as deeply as possible during the winter.

JUNMAI DAIGINJO

Rice polishing rate: Minimum 50%. The most premium category and the unique expression of a brewer's style. Here, brewers spend a lot of time and effort to produce their signature sakes, through milling at least half of the rice harvested and using quality ingredients and their best techniques to produce these fine sakes. Some brewers take it as far as milling their rice to 7% (Zankyo) and beyond. Perfect for someone looking for finesse, elegance, and a long lingering finish.

Yamada Nishiki • Chiba • +3
"Power (Kano)" sake made since the Edo era. Structured, masculine sake that can be paired with rich dishes

JUNMAI GINJO

Rice polishing rate: Minimum 60%. With Junmai, the sake is made only from rice, water, yeast, and Koji. In this category, we pay special attention to delicacy and aromas. Generally, Ginjo grade sakes are differentiated by their unique, refreshing, aromatic nuances (known as "Ginjoka"). These sakes can either be fruity or mineral-driven, depending on the type of water used. Pair with delicate sashimi dishes or drink on its own as an aperitif.

JUNMAI

general, the Junmai grade of sake showcases the unique rice used and savory flavor, since the sake keeps the rustic savoriness of the rice husks. Compared to the Junmai Ginjo and Daiginjo categories, these sakes show more masculine structures and can be served warm or paired with savory meat dishes. This category also includes the Chokara (Extra Dry) style of sake.

TOKUBETSU JUNMAI

Rice polishing rate: Minimum 60%. Tokubetsu (Special) Junmai refers to a category of sake that had a special reason to be produced: the brewer either uses special rice that only grows in their region or the sake is produced for a specific market. This is certainly an indication of a brewer wanting to show their true house style through their products. Great insight into a brewery's style, without a hefty price tag.

COFFEY SERIES

The Coffey still is the world's first patented continuous still invented by Aenas Coffey in 1830.

While Mr. Taketsuru was staying in Scotland, he had an opportunity to learn how to distill grain whisky in a Coffey still firsthand from craftsmen at James Calder in Bo'ness in 1919. Mr. Taketsuru valued the feature of this type of still and installed two sets of Coffey stills after he established Nikka Whisky. Traditional Coffey stills are not easy to operate and not efficient to obtain spirits. However, they retain flavors originating from ingredients and deliver a distinctive creamy texture.

SUNTORY

Shinjiro Torii was born in the Meiji Period, when Western culture and civilization suddenly flowed into Japan. In 1923, Mr. Shinjiro envisioned a whisky filled with the essence of Japanese nature and hand-crafted by artisans through a patient process of enhancing the work of nature. Though initially inspired by traditional Scottish whisky, Torii envisioned a Japanese approach by choosing a terrain and climate completely different from those of Scotland. Torii chose the region of Yamazaki, on the outskirts of Kyoto as the birthplace of Japanese Whisky.

YAMAZAKI SERIES

Inspired by traditional Scottish whisky, Mr. Torii envisioned a Japanese approach by choosing a terrain and climate completely different to those of Scotland to create a unique kind of whisky. The Yamazaki Distillery is thus the birthplace of Japanese whisky. Nestled proudly on the periphery of Kyoto, this region was formerly referred to as "Minaseo", where one of the purest waters of Japanese originates.

HIBIKI SERIES

"Hibiki" was created in 1989 to celebrate Suntory's 90 year anniversary as a blend using whiskies from its main distilleries Yamazaki and Hakushu. The goal was to create the ultimate Japanese whisky based on the concept of harmony between man and nature, as derived from the philosophy of Japanese culinary tradition. It is now one of the most highly regarded Japanese whiskies in the world with its complex yet harmonious character.
